

Warning! The puppy you just purchased may be a product of a puppy mill

It seems that some people are buying puppies from puppy mills located in Pennsylvania and selling them from their homes, puppy mill puppies are often genetically poor and often riddled with health problems. If you go to purchase a puppy and if at least one of the parents are not on premises, then beware, instead go to a reputable breeder, or better yet adopt one from your local shelter. For further information on the horrors of puppy mills, click on the link on this web page.

Click on the links below to find all you need to know about the Puppy Mill industry, so that the next time you see a puppy in a pet store or in someone's home, where none of the puppies parents are, you will not contribute to the pain and suffering by purchasing them, I know its not easy with thier sad, pleading eyes, however by purchasing that puppy you help create a larger demand for them and you help keep the puppy mills in business and help create new ones. Those same sad pleading eyes are also at the shelter, maybe not always set in the face of a puppy, maybe a little older face, who was given up by their owners, and has no idea why its there. The web links are in blue.

Raids on puppy mills often result in the seizure of dozens or even hundreds of sickly, stressed animals. The recent effort by animal care organizations to rescue scores of dogs from a Virginia puppy mill highlights the problems associated with the proliferation of these mass breeding facilities.

During Puppy Mill Action Week, learn how animal care organizations are working to put puppy mills out of business and get resources to educate your community about this cruel industry